Project Readiness Assessment

Overview

The Direct Path Project Readiness Assessment helps your organization gain a true understanding of your upcoming business or technology project. We quickly examine if you're truly up to the task - before you set expectations and commit valuable resources.

Over 50% of enterprise initiatives - especially systems implementations - fail. We use our practical experience to provide recommendations related to risks, challenges, opportunities, dependencies and costs for your project. We also answer those burning questions that will ultimately help determine your odds of success.

Process

Direct Path uses a simple 3-step process which is minimally invasive to your organization:

- Step 1: Meet with Sponsor - A Direct Path business consultant will meet with the sponsor to gain an understanding of the drivers behind the initiative.
- Step 2: Interview Stakeholders - We will interview key stakeholders to obtain a deeper understanding of goals, objectives, scope and finances - as well as review work that has been completed to date.
- Step 3: Deliver Results - We then summarize the results in a document and guide you through our observations, recommendations and potential next steps.

Answers

A few of the critical questions that we provide answers to include:

- Should we move forward or take a step back and re-evaluate our direction?
- What is the order of magnitude of this initiative?
- Are my business processes aligned with potential technology changes?
- What are the critical activities that MUST be done to ensure success?
- What are my high risk areas and how do I mitigate those risks?
